

Sunday, May 5th, 1:30 pm
Unitarian Universalist Center
1187 Franklin Street, at Geary Blvd
San Francisco

Violence, War and Peacemaking: Perspectives from the Judaic, Islamic and Christian Religions

Join us for an opportunity to learn how religions, politics, and cultures have impacted the current struggles in the Middle East. The speakers will include representatives from the three major religions of the area - Jewish, Christian and Islamic religions. A Q&A session will follow.

The speakers are:

- Rev. Dr. David Sammons, Consulting Minister to the Unitarian Universalist Society of SF. He has served as an acting President at Starr King School for the Ministry in Berkeley and has participated in Bay Area interfaith activities.
- Dr. Amer S. Araim, Imam of the Dar-UI- Islam Mosque in Walnut Creek; Member of Boards of Interfaith Council of Contra Costa County, and former UN Secretary of the Special Committee against Apartheid and on Decolonization.
- Rabbi Lynn Gottlieb, an Advisory Board member from the Jewish Voice for Peace, will speak on the JVP's position as to how to achieve peace between Israel and Palestine. She is the Coordinator of FOR Interfaith Peace walks, and co-founder of Shomer Shalom Network for Jewish Non-Violence.
- Rabbi Moshe Levin of the Congregation Ner Tamid in San Francisco will present a second Jewish view as to how to achieve peace in the region. He recently returned from a six weeks visit to the Middle East where he met with leaders from Israel and Palestine.
- Rev. Dr. Stephen Furrer, Interim Minister of the First Unitarian Universalist Church of San Francisco, will be the moderator for this Panel Discussion.

Free Admission ~ Wheelchair Accessible ~ Light Lunch at 12:30 pm

Sponsored by the Unitarian Universalist-United Nations Office &
Unitarian Universalists for Peace-SF - committees of the UU Society of San Francisco