

Got a bike?
Got a question about biotech?
Got qualms about the manipulation of nature in your name?

Whose Technology?

Biking-in Biotech

a week-long event at UC Berkeley

May 16-20, The Street

*Art, Science and Public Light
Around and About the Bioengineering Building*

PARTICIPATE!

Ignacio Chapela and The Pulse of Science invite you

Despite furious back-pedaling by the biotech industry and its supporters in the ag-biotech field, the transformation of life forges ahead under such guises as “Stem Cell Research”, “Reproductive Choice”, “Biodefense” and the perennial “War on Drugs”.

Much of this happens today under cover of military and academic license. As our corporations reach deeper into the fabric of life, ever more widely into public landscapes, a shroud of secrecy provides them cover, so that the public is in the dark about where billions of dollars of their support are being deployed.

A building is being erected. Come and see, ask what you are not supposed to know. Come see how much we can find out about it together. We will circulate art, science and public light around the hull of the 12-story bioengineering building, now under construction in the heart of the Berkeley Campus of the University.