

BACORR/ New College of SF Present: Reproductive Rights Movie Night!

Leona's Sister Gerri

The Last Abortion Clinic

Wednesday March 29, 7PM

Roxie Cinema

3117 16th Street (at Valencia Street) San Francisco

8.00 General Admission
4.00 for Students

“Leona's Sister Gerri” (1995), is an award winning film by Jane Gillooly.

This film tells the dramatic story of Gerri Santoro, a mother of two and the "real person" in the now famous photo of an anonymous woman on a motel floor, dead from an illegal abortion. Reprinted thousands of times on placards, and in the media, this grisly photo became a pro-choice icon.

“The Last Abortion Clinic” (2005)

Written, produced and directed by Raney Aronson-Rath.

The New York Times said "...‘The Last Abortion Clinic,’ gives a lucid picture of how the anti-abortion movement in states like Mississippi has worked so many hurdles into local laws that abortions are almost unattainable for poor women."

If you care about this issue NOW is the time to get involved.
Abortion has already been banned in South Dakota. Who's next?

BACORR, or Bay Area Coalition for Our Reproductive Rights, is a coalition of organizations, and individuals working for reproductive rights. Check out BACORR's website: <http://bacorr.org/> or e-mail us at bacorrinfo.riseup.net