ALL OUT MONDAY MORNING!
For a national moratorium on foreclosures and evictions!

June and Fred Reyno have lived in their modest Mira Mesa home for 19 years. Even with most of the furniture gone, at the order of the sheriff, the house and front and backyards bespeak the years of loving care. The 18 days they were granted to vacate will be up on Monday. They expect the police to come, probably in the morning. June does not intend to go quietly. She is angry that an offer was made to sell them back the house and then withdrawn when the couple found a willing lender. She is angry that the new corporate owner clearly intends, instead, to sell the home at a bigger profit, perpetuating the greedy financial feeding frenzy that has produced the present catastrophe of foreclosures. She is angry that the couple's offer to maintain the upkeep of the house and grounds if they are allowed to continue living there while an equitable solution is sought that would permit them to reestablish ownership has been ignored. She is angry that nationwide many thousands of people are being deprived of their homes because of corporate greed and a system that puts profits first and people last.

June Reyno does not intend to go quietly. She will answer the authorities' demand on Monday that she vacate by chaining herself to the front of the house. We believe her defiant courage will inspire the 700 other targets of foreclosure in the Mira Mesa area, the 9,000 targets of foreclosure in San Diego county and the 30,000 a month who face foreclosure and eviction nationwide.
