

HOTEL VOICES - Theatre and performance project from Single Room Occupancy Hotel residents

A revolutionary play written and performed by residents currently living, struggling and sometimes even thriving life in Single Room Occupancy Hotels (SRO's) aka Poor People Housing

After a free 20 week writing, performance and script-development workshop with writers Tony Robles and Tiny aka Lisa Gray-Garcia in collaboration with actor and director from Bindlestiff Studio, Allan Manalo, tenants in Single Room Occupancy Hotels have created a powerful, gripping play and will perform it as an ensemble cast.

Hotel Voices is a project of POOR Magazine
- A poor people led/ Indigenous people led art organization dedicated to revolutionary media access, education and art.
