

~ Directions:

- Take I-80 towards Vallejo
- Exit I-780 towards Benicia
- Exit Glen Cove Parkway
- Follow Glen Cove Pkwy until Left on S. Regatta Dr.
- Right on Whitesides Drive (site is at the end of the court)

Sacred Sites Protection and Rights of Indigenous Tribes (SSP&RIT) is an organization of Indigenous and Earth Peoples dedicated to preserving traditional Native American cultural and spiritual freedom. This mission includes the protection of Sacred Sites and Places, preserving the right to practice traditional spiritual (religious) ceremonies, and respect for the traditional cultural customs (behavior) of Native Americans. neighbors, get educated and get the word out! For more information visit:

www.ProtectGlenCove.org

e-mail: glencove@riseup.net

*call Wounded Knee DeOcampo (707) 557-2140
or Corrina Gould .....(510) 575-8408

500+ Years of Genocide, Assimilation, Broken Treaties, and Resistance

STOP the Desecration of Glen Cove!

Preserve the Past – Protect the Future – Save Our Sacred Sites!

“A society that cannot remember its past is in peril of losing its soul.”

~Vine Deloria Jr.

The San Pablo Bay Area was once a thriving multi-national region of many indigenous communities. Before the genocide and forced assimilation of the “Americas” initiated by the arrival of Europeans, the area of Solano County was inhabited by the Coastal Miwok and Carquín (Ohlone) nations. Being cultures of traders, they were but a part of a vast network of merchant cultures that extended across the Pacific Ocean and Central America.

Many different tribes utilized the benefits of the once-thriving Northern California chaparral, estuary, and wetlands, respecting the diverse yet delicate ecosystems to preserve them for future generations. The Coastal and Bay Miwok, South Pomo, Wappo, Patwin-Wintun, North Yokut, and Ohlone nations had over 500 shellmounds that were located and recorded by the late 18th century, most of them being thousands of years old. The practice of consciously caring for the land allowed these cultures and ecosystems to thrive. For tens of thousands of years, the ecological balance was maintained, and what is now known as California remained a beautiful, pristine environment.

As Europeans systematically conquered and enslaved California natives, so too were the villages, shellmounds, and ecosystems exploited and desecrated over the years of colonization. Most of these shellmounds were permanently destroyed along with thousands of years of archeological, anthropological, and spiritual history. In the past 20 years, the few remaining shellmounds and burial sites have been destroyed by shopping mall construction, suburban housing tracts, or other corporate-commercial developments. An infamous local example is the Bay Street Mall located in Emeryville, built over a place of ancestral worship with archeological reports proving that it contained vast burial grounds of the Ohlone nation (hence “Shellmound Drive”). Not only are the physical remnants of these ancient peoples destroyed, but so is the respect and awareness regarding our indigenous ancestors.

The 15-acre Glen Cove Shellmound site (registered CA-SOL 236) is one of the oldest known shellmounds in the San Pablo Bay. Known as “Sogorea Te,” this site was first documented in archeological records in 1907 by an archeologist from the University of California and, according to a 1988 report by Novato Archeological Resource Service, is at least 3,500 to 4,000 years old. Many of the sacred items unearthed from the site in previous years remain in the Phoebe A. Hearst Museum of Anthropology at UC Berkeley, which houses over 13,000 ancestral remains and over 200,000 sacred objects. At the Vallejo site, intact skeletal remains and cremations have been documented along with mortars and pestles, arrowheads, spear points, eagle claws, bear teeth, bird-bone whistles, and ceremonial feather/shell jewelry ornaments. It is literally the many layers of generations that actually form the shellmound; Sogorea Te is a sacred site, the final resting place for the ancestors of multiple California tribes.

The Greater Vallejo Reaction District (GVRD) and the City of Vallejo are currently developing a park with trails, a parking lot, restroom, and amendments that would effectively degrade and destroy this site. Garlon 4, an herbicide, will also be sprayed, saturating the delicate ecosystem with synthetic chemicals. Because human remains and cultural artifacts are still at the site, preserving and protecting this sacred place in the way those who created it is a legal right under the American Indian Religious Freedom Act and is an essential part of Indigenous cultural survival. The desecration of the ancient Glen Cove Shellmound (and surrounding burial site) and the theft of remains and sacred items is criminal and inhumane. This ignorance, greed, profit, and power over others, through the abuse of the departed is a crime against humanity, literally erasing and destroying a part of humanity's past.

The $1.5 million dollar project is simply an attack by developers who see the land as an intravenous line to their bank accounts. Unfortunately, because of the implications of losing money, many profit-driven developers choose instead to ignore any artifacts and bones found at a development site. In a bankrupt city, with rising rates of violent crime, closing schools, undernourished families, and foreclosed homes, we can think of better places this money should have been channeled to.

Every day, we see the blatant abuse and destruction of our Sacred Sites. Because all humans are indigenous to the Earth, it is up to all of us to protect and preserve the resting places of our Ancestors that are a rich part of our cultural, spiritual, and traditional heritage. We live in a time where our natural landscapes are fast disappearing, Sacred Sites are violated, the water and skies saturated by poisonous carcinogenic toxins, wildlife is forced out of their natural habitats (industrial civilization is responsible for the sixth mass extinction of species we are currently undergoing), rainforests are clear-cut, oceans are over-fished and over polluted, while big-box stores, housing developments, and death-black pavement covers and imprisons the land; all in the name of "progress." The plants, animals, and Earth itself have a right to exist, not to be exploited and manipulated for the benefit of human beings. This park project is completely unnecessary as the Glen Cove community already has a park within walking distance, complete with a parking lot, restrooms, playground, tennis courts, etc...How would you like it if your ancestors' grave site was unnecessarily paved over with a parking lot and restroom?

The following expresses our deeply held convictions about the need to Preserve and Protect the sacred burial grounds at Glen Cove in Vallejo, California:

PRESERVE:

- Keep the burial site as natural as it was meant to be by Native Ancestors of the Indigenous Tribes.
- Carefully raze the Stremmel Mansion, the caretaker's house and other structures unnatural to the site. They are built over tribal remains.
- Adding a protective layer of soil is further desecration of the site. Leave the grounds undisturbed.
- Plan any trails on the perimeter of the site, as the whole 15 acres is shell mound and burial site with significant historical value.

PROTECT:

- Carefully remove by hand the weeds, and prune if necessary.
- Maintenance should be done in a non-invasive manner without re-grading, discing, etc. with any heavy machinery.
- Any replanting of Native plant varieties must be done under spiritual and cultural advisement.
- The Bay Trail and Bay Area Ridge Trail will be safely rerouted around the sacred burial site to safely protect the beauty and history of this sacred place.

STAND UNITED for ALL SACRED SITES.

"Only when the last tree has died, the last river poisoned, and the last fish caught will we realize that we cannot eat money."

~Cree prophecy

