I just seen the video of your pigs murdering that man. The people need to rise up, take up arms and randomly blow away 3-5 pigs. If you shit heads can murder, the people can. You only get away with it because some judge lets your trash go. If we the people get lucky and someone blows your bacon away and they let me on the jury, not guilty, thank you sir or mam for doing we the people a favor. Worthless human garbage pigs.!!

it is a shame that we can not trust police to protect us no more. I live on the street where this incident happened and saw the videos of the shooting.

it's very disappointing to see that the police were so close to the man that they could had gotten him or at least they could had shoot at his leg and not shoot at him so many times as the officer did and as it clearly shows in the video. this is really a disgrace for our community and I think it's time that our community starts doing something about all this racism going on because I am pretty sure that if it was a white person instead of a person in color the officer would never had shot the person. it gets me really mad to see how police abuse of their power and therefore our community is now revolving against the police. If here are people being punish for killing others, the police officer should also be punish for murdering a person!!!!!!

I am thoroughly disgusted by the abuse of authority your officers used in gunning down the man yesterday that had shears in his hands. He was clearly not attacking them, but trying to get away. Is it possible he had mental issues? The state of our law enforcement sheer ignorance of mental illness rivals the dark ages. You will try and spin this of course. The blue wall and all that great stuff. Give your guys medals for murder. I have a cousin that actually serves and protects the way it was intended. He actually uses logic, and reason. Discretion must be hard to come by since murder by cop is becoming so prevalent. And to think I almost became CHP at one point, and even went through the preliminary process at Santa Cruz PD before deciding otherwise. Pervert justice and it will eventually come to haunt you. Karma's a bitch. Just my 2 cents. Don't respond. It will only be patronizing.

Sincerely

NARRATIVE - OFFICER 54372

Magana, Gerardo

On 05-21-2014 at approximately 0900 hours Detective Gabriel Gonzalez and I responded to 707 Elkington St. to the report of vandalism in front of this residence.

When we arrived on scene I immediately noticed graffiti on the north end of the property. The cylinder block wall had "187 SPD" spray painted in red paint.

Officer Raul Rosales photographed the graffiti and sent the photographs to the crime scene investigation folder. A Salinas city worker was on scene and immediately painted over the graffiti after Officer Rosales photographed it. Copies of the photographs are attached to this report.

Officer Rosales was talking to a male who claimed to be the brother of Carlos Mejia Gomez, the suspect who was shot by police the previous day. Refer to Salinas Police Department case number 14-051008. I spoke with Jose Mejia and identified myself as a Salinas Police Department detective, and asked him if he could show me his identification card. Mejia told me he did not have his identification card on him.

I asked Mejia how he knew it was his brother who was the person shot by police. Mejia said he had seen the video on the news and he clearly recognized his brother from the video, and said he was sure it was his brother because he saw his face on the video.

Mejia asked me why we had to kill his brother, and why didn't the police officers shoot him in the arms or legs to take him down. I told Mejia to come to the Salinas Police Department to speak with detectives in regards to this case. Mejia looked at his cell phone and told me he had to do some errands, and would go to the police department at a later time. I told Mejia it was very important for him to speak to detectives. I told Mejia that I could give him a ride to the police department or if he wanted to he could follow me to the police department. Mejia told me he had errands to do and could not go to the police department at this time.

CASE NUMBER

SUPPLEMENT

I gave Mejia my contact card and told him to call me when he was ready to speak with detectives.

I spoke with GM1 and our conversation was audio recorded. GM1 told me this morning when she went outside her residence to bring in her trash cans she saw a male wearing a gray jacket and blue jeans approach her. The male asked GM1 if this was the residence were a male had come to ask for something. She said she did not know anything and went back inside her residence.

I asked GM1 what time she went to sleep last night and if her wall was already spray painted. GM1 said her wall was not spray painted when she went to sleep, and did not see anyone outside her residence during the night.

GM1 said last night when her husband got home from work he went to 716 Elkington St. Apt # 2 and spoke with Woanna Prieto. GM1 said Prieto is the girl who was videotaping the officers and the suspect yesterday. GM1's husband told Prieto not to tell GM1 anything and to leave her alone.

GM1 said she was alerted about the graffiti outside her residence by GM2. GM2 went to GM1's residence at 0800 hours, knocked at her front door and told her about the graffiti. GM1 said she did not want this to happen to the suspect.

I told GM1 it was not her fault the suspect got shot. GM1 told me the only person who was blaming her for the death of the suspect was Woanna Prieto who told her, "You see because of your fault you see what happened." GM1 said Prieto only told her this the day of the shooting and has not had any further communication with her.

I told GM1 not to answer the front door to anyone she doesn't know, and if she received any threats from anyone or if she had any further information to call me. I told her if she believed her life was in danger to call the police. I also told GM1 to call the police if any new graffiti was done at her house.

No further information at this time.

Residents of a small central California city are asking for a response from officials after the local police department has been attributed with fatally shooting two suspects in a span of just 11 days this month.

The Tuesday afternoon shooting death of man alleged to have attempted to burglarize a Salinas, CA home and then expose himself to the person inside marks the second time this month — and third time this year — that officers there have come under fire for what some are calling excessive force.

A local newspaper, the Monterey Herald, reported on Wednesday that Salinas residents were responding angrily to the previous day's incident in light of video footage published online showing local law enforcement officials firing the fatal shots at the man from point-blank range. The victim was not immediately identified by police.

According to the Herald, cops were alerted of an attempted break-in on Tuesday afternoon after a female caller told 911 that a man was not just trying to enter her home, but was trying to kill her dog and had exposed himself.

When police arrived and found the man on an adjacent street carrying a pair of gardening shears, the incident quickly escalated. The Herald quoted Salinas police Cmdr. Vince Maiorana as saying that the man was initially unresponsive when police tried to approach him about the alleged attempted break-in, then began to act strangely.

"Officers end up talking to this individual, trying to find out what he's doing and what the situation was based upon the original 911 call," Maiorana said. "This individual started to wave the gardening shears at the officers. We tried to deploy a Taser; the Taser did not work and as the officers tried to detain this individual, this individual pulled the gardening shears and actually attacked the officers with the gardening shears."

"In response, the officers, fearing for their personal safety, shot this individual and he is now deceased."

Cell phone video footage obtained by the paper shows that two officers with guns drawn and only a few feet away from the man fired four or five shots in broad daylight on Tuesday in a commercial part of Salinas, a town of roughly 154,000.

Recommended

"There's some split-second decisions that have to be made by the officer," Maiorana told the Herald. "When the officer commanded this individual to drop the shears and to get down on the ground, this individual actually attacked the officer with the gardening shears."

According to the paper, though, witnesses — including the 19-year-old college student who captured the video footage of the shooting — disagree. The source of the Herald clip, Yoanna Prieto, said the man appeared to be backing away from police the entire time she was filming.

The Salinas Police Department is likely to have a harder time than ever justifying Tuesday's shooting, though, in the wake of an all-too similar incident that unfolded a week-and-a-half earlier.

On May 9, two Salinas cops fatally shot 26-year-old lettuce farmer Osman Hernandez outside of a grocery store only one mile away from the scene of this week's tragedy after he reportedly was chasing shoppers with a knife. Reports have since suggested Hernandez was drinking heavily at a nearby bar for two hours before the incident.

According to the man's family, at least one of the shots fired by law enforcement after the police arrived hit Hernandez in the head while he was lying on the ground.

"They killed Osman like a dog as he lay on the ground. Why are we to trust them investigating themselves? Why does it take so many bullets to the head to subdue a man who is already lying on the ground? Osman's life had value. We want the truth," a spokesperson for the man's family told reporters earlier this month.

KSBW added that the one eyewitness told the network that Hernandez was on the ground and stunned from the Taser when police fired no fewer than four shots. .

Christopher Dolan, a noted civil right attorney, told KSBW that the killing of his client "appears to be an excessive use of force resulting in a senseless killing."

"This is what is commonly referred to as a homicide," Dolan said. "The police state that they killed Mr. Hernandez for having a knife, not for actually threatening them with harm. Mr. Hernandez didn't even have a weapon in his hand when he was gunned down. The police, given the ultimate power by us, the citizens, owe each of us a duty to use only the minimum amount of force necessary. Officers are trained how to disarm a suspect and it's not by shooting them in the head over and over! This family deserves real answers so we will have private investigators speak with the witnesses, have Osman's body transferred to a private pathologist for analysis of the bullet trajectories, gunshot residue, and we will retain nationally renowned use of force experts to analyze the officers' conduct. It's in times like these when the police have killed someone that we need to be most vigilant as to protect ourselves from those entrusted to protect us."

Law enforcement up and down the West Coast have come under attack in recent years for a string of office-involved shootings and other acts of violence believed by some to demonstrate a trend towards using unnecessary force, but the comparably calm city of Salinas has endured three fatal police shootings alone so far in 2014.

"I understand there's a lot of emotions and a lot of legitimate concerns," Police Chief Kelly McMillin said during a City Council meeting on Tuesday with regards to that afternoon's shooting. "We're working hard to gather the facts, and when we have the facts, we will present them."

In late March, a man was shot to death by Salinas police officers after the cops responded to a report of a suspicious person who reportedly brandished a handgun when approached by law enforcement.

David Smith she was juggling a baby while capturing the shot, so considering this she did a fine job.. amazing she got any of it .. the tot appeared to be slightly older as well.. weight is a factor.. I would give her the job provided she left the child at home.. plus she didn't run the other way while carrying her child to a shooting scene, she has some guts and didn't back away kudos girl. shame about the man,, I would not want to live in Salinas CA. no way and I hope none of my family ever moves there..

THAT IS WHY...

when you are met by cops, just starting shooting no talk...every confrontation with the police needs to be a shoot out..all the time every time.
After 490 cops die they may start to think again until then kill all cops all the time, every time.

As this occurs more and more, then more and more are we all becoming so complacent and accustomed to it.

The police usually just fritter away such incidents with the stuff about 'officers being in danger' - nothing about the public in danger from police using any ploy to shoot and kill.

Say those who use drugs decide to fight back using the law, the Constitution of the United States and charge those who levy war on them, use deadly force against them with treason. Treason is only levying war on them and giving aid and comfort to the enemies of the United States.

Then those who use drugs say the courts of the United States give aid and comfort to the enemies by upholding ex post facto bills as law which in doing so they have created the drug lords, the killings and crime.

When I was a kid growing up in America, if a gop shot an unarme person they would automatically lose their job and the closest thing to a cop they would ever be allowed as a job was a dog catcher. Today they are rewarded with a two week vacation with pay for murder and a few months later a commendation for bravery. Welcome to fascist Amerika.

Your side is crying wolf over a guy that posed a risk to police and those in that neighborhood. Would you rather have someone, like a child walking down the street come around the corner and now be faced with a crazy guy with shears. The cops had to stop him before he made it to a more populated area which he seemed to be moving towards.

People got themselves killed, displaying toy guns, crochet needles, lettuce knives, and pruning shears. We are down to finger nail clippers. Is there anything our police doesn't feel threatened with? The video clearly shows, and thank God we have it. The victim was backing away from the police, he just wanted to be left alone. But police would not have it. Their selfish motives of domination and power drove them to something that didn't have to happen. Video shows one Officer had his gun out and still pointing at a dead man laying on the ground. Was the dead man still a threat? Talk about over-dramatization. Good show. Jolly, Jolly good show.

How did they feel threatened when clearly in the video you can see the officers following the man and he didn't make any attempts to hurt them and they just shot him for no apparent reason. They should be put thru trial and sentence to the death penalty.

SALINAS, Calif. — The Salinas Police Department posted a response to frequently asked questions about recent shootings involving the city's police force.

The following are the questions and answers provided by the department:

All 3 of the people by police shot this year were Latinos. Are the police targeting Latinos?

Absolutely not. But we understand and acknowledge the emotions behind that question.

The Salinas Police Department has long followed strict policies against any form of social injustice. But as a community, Salinas, like much of America, has a painful history of discrimination against minorities. In our case it has often been Latinos who have suffered. As a community we are still healing from that history – the process is not over.

But it is a fundamental principle for the Salinas Police Department that everyone, no matter what their background, must be treated with fairness and respect. Any police officer who violates this principle faces the strictest sanctions. If you're wondering why you should believe that, please see "Why should I believe you?" below.

Why have so many people been shot by police?

justice in response to officer-involved shootings. A small group from out of town broke away at one point and sprayed graffiti on the Salinas police station containing the names of men who were shot by police this year.

The three shootings by police officers this year are very unusual – in recent years the average for Salinas is one officer-involved shooting per year.

All three shootings are being very thoroughly investigated. When things happen in a cluster like this, it often looks like they must be connected – as in, “suddenly the police are shooting more people.” But random clusters of events are common, and there is no evidence these shootings are connected.

If the shootings aren't connected, why did they all involve Latinos?

In Salinas, 77% of the population is Latino. That means that, all other things being equal, nearly 8 out of 10 violent crimes would probably be committed by Latinos – just because nearly 8 out of 10 people in Salinas are Latino.

In reality, more than 8 out of 10 violent crimes are committed by Latinos. The number is more than 9 out of 10. People don't commit violent crimes because they are Latino, of course. Mountains of research show that violent crime is much more likely in underserved neighborhoods, meaning neighborhoods that suffer from poverty, lack of services and lack of opportunity. In Salinas, those neighborhoods are much more likely to be Latino. So people from underserved neighborhoods are much more likely to commit violent crimes, which means they are much more likely to have contact with the police. That's what we see in Salinas.

Why did the police shoot Carlos Mejia (the man with the shears seen in a cellphone video) when he was walking away from them?

They didn't. When you slow down and zoom in on the cell phone video, you see that the officers did not shoot Mr. Mejia when he was walking away, they shot him when he turned and attacked them with the shears. More context is added by a surveillance camera video as well as by a 911 call from a woman who said Mr. Mejia was trying to break into her house and assault her.

Chief McMillin took reporters through the videos and audio at a press conference on May 22, 2014.

- Find coverage of the press conference here.
- See KSBW's analysis of the cell phone video here.
- See the 911 call transcript here.

Why didn't the police Tase Mr. Mejia?

They did. The first officer fired his Taser, but it malfunctioned. Then the second officer fired his, but one of its contacts struck a telephone pole, which prevented it from having any effect.

Why didn't they shoot him in the arm or leg?

Although you see that happen on TV and in the movies, that's not what police are trained to do. When an armed person attacks, their first priority is to stop the threat to public safety as fast as possible, and that is what they are trained to do. There are many cases of civilians and police being seriously injured or killed by armed, violent people who have been wounded. So police are trained to use enough force to stop the threat immediately.

Why did they shoot him more than once?

Once someone attacks, police are trained to stop the threat, both to themselves and members of the public. We can't at this point know exactly what the officers' judgment was, but it's common for police to shoot multiple times to stop a threat.

Why did they get close enough for him to attack them?

To stop a violent person with a weapon, police have to gain physical control of him, typically by putting him in handcuffs. They start by ordering the person to drop the weapon and surrender, and then need to get control of the person as soon as possible so they can prevent harm to members of the public.

Why should I believe you?

We expect to be held accountable by our actions, not just our words. Here are some of our actions:

- After the recent shootings

We know that some people don't trust "cops investigating cops." We think if they could see how strict, thorough and impartial the internal investigations are, they'd change their minds. But because of the level of concern right now, Police Chief McMillin has asked for a total of three independent reviews of the police department's investigations. In addition to the standard review by the Monterey County District Attorney, Police Chief Kelly McMillin has asked for an additional review by the FBI and a third one by the Civil Rights Division of the US Department of Justice.

- Other actions

The Salinas Police and the City of Salinas are recognized nationally as a leader in reducing crime through a community-based strategy of prevention, intervention and re-entry services, working to reduce the need for enforcement. Salinas was invited to be a founding member of the President's National Forum on Youth Violence Prevention, which is focused on community-based solutions to crime and on the recognition that "you can't arrest your way out of the problem."

- Salinas is the leading agency in the Community Alliance for Safety and Peace, (CASP) which brings together community groups, social services, the faith community, local governments and law enforcement around the Prevention-Intervention-Enforcement-Re-entry (PIER) strategy. Even though Salinas is facing severe budget shortages, it dedicates a full-time staff member to serve as the manager of CASP and give it every possible support. The Police Department is also facing shortages, and is seriously under-staffed, but it has assigned two full-time "CASP officers" to the Hebborn Heights neighborhood of the Alisal. These officers, who have been recognized nationally for their work, make very few arrests, devoting almost all of their time to assisting members of the community and building connections among families, neighborhoods, community groups and service providers.

- Police Chief Kelly McMillin has committed the police department to the legitimacy and procedural justice model of policing, which holds that true authority comes not from the use or fear of force but from the trust of the community. According to a recent KSBW-TV story: "The method recognizes that people want to feel heard, feel respected and want to know their police are neutral and trustworthy." The Salinas Police Department is the first on the West Coast to train all officers in legitimacy and procedural justice.

- The Salinas Police Department is among the pioneers in using the Operation Ceasefire strategy, which has led to dramatic reductions in violence in cities across the country while improving relationships between police and the communities they serve. Operation Ceasefire's originator, David Kennedy, mentions the Salinas Police in his ground-breaking book Don't Shoot: One Man, A Street Fellowship and the End of Violence in Inner-City America.

- Police Chief Kelly McMillin was recognized by the White House in 2012 as a Champion of Change. The recognition was for his work to prevent youth violence within the community through Operation Ceasefire and the CASP strategy.

Note: The FAQ above was issued by the Salinas Police Department. KSBW takes no position on the views expressed herein.

Salinas Police Chief Kelly McMillin said the officers who shot Ruiz and Hernandez did nothing wrong because the officers' lives were in danger and the suspects were armed. McMillin has not made a decision yet on whether Mejia's death was justified.

Honestly I can't believe people think the cops targeted Latinos when a community is mostly Latino your going to run across one or two criminals it's like saying cops in asia are targeting Asians it's an oxymoron!

Wow ·

Couldn't agree more!!

To ad to this, whoever Missy 831 is, if you are educated than why is your English so white trash ? them police officers ? really?

Good for the police in stopping people who are threatening the peace around them. The man who was shot on Tuesday threatened a woman with those gardening shears. He was warned by the police, tazered and did not stop charging the officers with those shears. It is clear on the video that he was coming after who knows ? It is a high price that is being payed as an effort to peace and stability is being sought. If people think that they can live above the law they need to look carefully. If you do not like our laws in America than go home. Maybe you can get away with approaching innocent people and filling them with fear in your country but it should not be happenning here. I am really tired of this reverse discrimation in our country. American citizens are living in a fear that they never had to live in before. This is not how we grew up. There are many honest, hardworking people that have come to this country. Unfortunately there are the bad apples that want to stir it up. IF YOU MAKE AN ILLEGAL ACT OR BRANDISH A WEAPON EXPECT REPRUCUSSIONS.

HECKY ·

WOW TRUTH 1!! that whole line of...(AMERICAN CITIZENS ARE LIVING IN A FEAR THAT THEY NEVER HAD TO LIVE IN BEFORE) are you familiar with JAMES HOLMES, ADAM LANZA? Or better yet, just look at THE LIST OF SCHOOL SHOOTINGS IN US!! And reply to me with latino or mexican kids names, killing kids and teachers in schools!!

WhySoSerious ·

Mexicans and Latinos are not involved in gangs and violent crime?

truth 1 ·

I have lived in this state for over 60 years. Times have changed. We did not have this violence 20 years ago and now it is escalating. How long have you lived here Hecky? Must not be very long or you would know the difference.

Shuggah21 ·

they could at least get their story straight - was Mejia shot because he "attacked" the officers, or to prevent him from entering the bakery?

SALINAS, Calif. — The Salinas Police Department was slammed with an online petition, tense protests outside their police station, and a possible lawsuit Wednesday as residents declared officers used racist judgement and brutality while killing three Hispanic man in three separate incidents in 2014.

An attorney for the family of Osman Hernandez filed a civil claim against the city for $2 million in damages on Wednesday. The city has 45 days to respond before the family and their attorney, Christopher Dolan, can file a lawsuit.

Hernandez, 26, was shot and killed by Salinas police outside Mi Pueblo market on May 9. He was clutching a lettuce knife and ignoring police commands moments when he was shot, according to the police chief.

Police Chief Kelly McMillin said the officers who killed Hernandez did nothing wrong.

At the same time the civil claim was filed, demonstrators protested outside the Salinas police station, confronted officers who were arriving and leaving, and yelled out "murders." McMillin told protesters that they were welcome to convene, but were not allowed to stand in the way of officers trying to do their jobs.

Protesters held up signs reading, "Salinas police are trigger happy!", "Police will murder you," and "Two murders by Salinas police is enough."

On Tuesday, a witness recorded video of two Salinas police officers pointing guns at a man outside Y Delicia's Bakery at Sanborn Plaza. The man was carrying gardening sheers and can been seen walking away from police as the officers follow him down the street. Officers have their guns drawn and pointed at the man.

A few moments later, the officers suddenly opened fire.

Witnesses can be heard shouting expletives at the officers as a body lay on the ground.

"Why the f— didn't you Taser him? You guys didn't even try," one woman is heard yelling.

protestors call for independent investigation into Shooting

SALINAS, Calif. - Both the Mi Pueblo and North Sanborn officer-involved shootings this month took center stage at the Salinas City Council meeting on Tuesday night. That's where there was public outcry for a review of the department's internal affairs. Now the League of United Latin American Citizens is getting involved as people living in the city make several demands.

Man fatally shot by Salinas police on North Sanborn Road

A group of Salinas residents said they first came together to demand more information on the officer involved shooting at Mi Pueblo on East Alisal earlier this month. Tuesday's officer-involved shooting on North Sanborn, only added more fuel to the fire.

"We want the Salinas Police Department and the city government to actually sit down with young people, who are at risk, sit down with young people and not just see them as a number," said resident Francisco Estrada Jr.

More than a dozen people debated with each other over the police department's recent use of force of a man in surveillance video. Police said armed suspect Osman Hernandez was seen waving a knife around. Officers admitted to shooting and killing him after he refused to surrender after being hit with a stun gun. Now cellphone footage of Tuesday's officer-involved shooting on North Sanborn is going viral and some are outraged.

"Once again Salinas police officers have demonstrated complete inability to carry out an arrest without depending on the excessive use of force," said Alisal Union School District board member Meredith Ibarra.

Others call for the community to avoid misplacing blame.

"Why are you scared of not coming out of your own house? It's not because of the police. It's because of the other people around that instill that fear in you," said a Salinas resident.

The group of residents has several demands:

Just an observer

Where are all these protestors and outraged citizens when gangs are shooting people WEEKLY in Salinas? Why isn't LULAC screaming for their justice?!

David Phillips

What is the address of the executive office for the gang leadership? I'm sure the protestors would be more than willing to show up and make some noise.

You expect them to just march up and down the street yelling at random cars or something?

Just an observer

No I expect them to be witnesses in those cases because we all know damn well that they see and/or hear about those shootings. But instead it's "I didn't see anything" and "No, wasn't my friend/son/boyfriend." They hide behind the same code of silence they are so outraged about right now. I'm not saying this shooting is justified but damn what about the truly innocent people who were just standing near where a gang decided to open fire? No one is willing to scream injustice or take the witness stand to point out the killer.

Proud Citizen

Salinas is a bullshit city. The Salinas Police Department are doing their part in instilling fear in these morons who want to continuously run around and wreak havoc. Instead of protesting against the Salinas PD doing their job, why don't the rest of the Salinas residents help the Salinas PD. Every single week there is a gang related incident and nobody sees anything? Really? This is simply pathetic. I am in favor of the Salinas PD doing their job and protecting themselves against these idiots. Go Salinas Police Department! Keep up the great work!

David Phillips

Why don't they help the Police? Because they get retaliated against after the Police said they went to the area because a woman called 911 after seeing a man in her backyard holding scissors. She said the man tried to break into her house, threatened to kill her and attacked her dog.

VIDEO SHOWS SALINAS POLICE SHOOT MAN ARMED WITH SHEARS

KSBW obtained raw video showing Salinas police officers fatally shoot a man armed with gardening shears on Tuesday.

Questions are being raised about police tactics after Salinas officers shot and killed a man armed with gardening shears on Tuesday.

When police arrived, they found the man in the street armed with garden shears. After repeatedly ignoring officers' instructions to put the shears down, an officer attempted to fire a Taser at the man, but the Taser misfired.

The Salinas Police Department's statement noted that, "As the suspect continued to ignore the orders of the officers, the suspect retrieved the gardening shears from his backpack. In an aggressive fashion, the suspect swung the gardening shears at the officers who were standing in close proximity and in danger of being stabbed or slashed. In response to this threat, two officers fired their weapons at the suspect."

The mood of the crowd that gathered moments after the shooting was tense and emotional. Several people yelled at police officers and questioned whether race was a factor in Tuesday's shooting.

"We ask the community to be patient and remain calm until enough facts are known so that a conclusion as to the appropriateness of the officers' actions can be determined," police said.

Some residents raised similar concerns after a shooting 11 days ago at the Mi Pueblo market in Salinas, when officers shot and killed 26-year-old Osman Hernandez. Hernandez was a fieldworker and had a knife that he used for cutting lettuce. But after he drunkenly ran around a busy shopping center swinging his knife in the air, officers fatally shot him.

Dozens of people gathered at Salinas City Hall on Tuesday night to speak before the City Council. Many of them voiced frustration with Salinas police, saying they acted too aggressively in Tuesday's incident and the one at the Mi Pueblo Market.

The demonstrators asked the council to have the officers involved in the shootings placed on leave until outside investigations are completed.

VIDEO: Demonstrators demand answers after police kill again

They also want officer-involved shootings over the last 10 years to be examined and to have a civilian review board set up to deal with resident complaints against the police.

Finally, they are asking for additional firearms training for police.

"Yes, we do have a gang problem. And they're dressed in blue and they have badges and they're called the Salinas Police Department," one man told the council.

While the police chief and the council were called out directly in many of the citizen comments, the only response came from Salinas Mayor Joe Gunter who said the shooting death of Hernandez is still under investigation and will be for several weeks. Gunter also said the City Council will not comment on the investigations.

The two officers involved in Tuesday's shooting are on paid administrative leave.

Police are not releasing the name of the man who was shot until his family is notified.

Salinas police identify man shot outside of Mi Pueblo

Officers said the victim reported a man trying to break into a home and threatened to kill them. It was also reported that the suspect tried to kill the victim's dog and had exposed his genitals in a sexually explicit manner and made sexually explicit and suggestive comments.

Two officers responded within minutes, and found a Hispanic man on the street with large gardening shears.

Officers told Central Coast News they told the man to drop the shears in both English and Spanish and that he refused to comply and began waving them around. They say officers attempted to use a stun gun but it was not effective.

As the suspect continued to ignore the orders of the officers, police said the suspect retrieved the gardening shears from his backpack. The suspect reportedly swung the gardening shears at the officers in an aggressive fashion. Police said those officers were in danger of being stabbed or slashed. In response to this threat, two officers fired their weapons at the suspect.

The suspect's name and age have not been released at this time.

Witnesses captured the incident on cellphone footage that quickly went viral Tuesday as people shared the clip on various social media sites. A version of that video can be seen below:

Police in Salinas shot and killed a suspect armed with gardening shears Tuesday, but some residents who viewed a video of the deadly run-in on the Internet say the officers went too far.

Someone called 911 around 12:15 p.m. after a man tried to break into a home and threatened to kill the resident, police said. Witnesses told officers the assailant also threatened to kill the resident's dog and exposed his genitals to the victim, police said. Officers who responded to the home on Elkington Avenue spotted a suspect with a large pair of gardening shears sticking out of his backpack. Police said they ordered the man to get on the ground and tried to subdue him with an electric stun gun, but it was "ineffective."

The man then pulled the gardening shears from his backpack "in an aggressive fashion" and swung them at one of the officers, police said. That's when officers opened fire, killing the man. His name has not been released.

Video posted Tuesday on YouTube shows the encounter and the immediate aftermath. Witnesses can be heard shouting expletives at the officers after the deadly confrontation.

"Why the f— didn't you Taser him? You guys didn't even try," one woman is heard yelling.

Dozens of people voiced frustrations with police Tuesday night before the Salinas City Council, according to KSBW-TV.

Tuesday's shooting was the third deadly officer-involved shooting this year in Salinas. On May 9, officers shot and killed a knife-wielding suspect after he broke free from officers who were trying to subdue him, police said.

Police officials urged residents to "remain calm until enough facts are known so that a conclusion as to the appropriateness of the officers' actions can be determined."

The officers involved in Tuesday's shooting were placed on paid administrative leave while authorities investigate. Their names have not been released.

As a former Law Enforcement Officer, I saw several opportunities for this situation to be de-escalated. None of them were taken. Where are these officers getting their training? A suspect swinging gardening shears at officers is NOT a reason to use deadly force. At NO time did I see on the video, the suspect trying to advance on the officers. In fact it was the opposite.

In order for police to use authorized deadly force, three items must be met:

1. Ability - The suspect must have the means to harm or kill an officer. Gardening shears could meet the requirement, but only barely and it would depend on what the suspect was doing with the shears.
2. Opportunity - The suspect must be able to be in a position to inflict harm.
3. Jeopardy - The officer must be in immediate danger.

All three of these requirements must be met for ... See More

Two Salinas Police officers followed an unidentified man for at least one minute, guns drawn, from a residential neighborhood to the corner of Del Monte Avenue and Sanborn Avenue. He was walking and running away from the officers, occasionally turning his head back toward them. Just before the entrance of Sanborn Plaza market on the corner of the intersection, the man slowed and turned to the officers. He was shot immediately, at least five times, and dropped to the pavement.

That was all captured on video, filmed by a witness Tuesday afternoon.

As the man lay unmoving on the sidewalk, a woman can be heard screaming at the officers as they handcuffed him. "Why the fk did you guys shoot him!" she screams. "If we want to die, we'll fkin' call you guys!"

Within a few hours, about 60 people had assembled in protest on the City Hall lawn. The mix of community activists from different groups and causes had already planned to show up, even before the shooting on Sanborn that afternoon. Some gathered around iPhones, watching the video footage of the shooting.

Family members of farmworker Osman Hernandez, who was shot and killed by Salinas Police officers in the Mi Tierra parking lot on May 9, were there. Hernandez was shot by two officers after waving around a lettuce knife in the crowded parking lot; police say he failed to respond to their commands to drop the knife.

"We want to know what happened," says Yanira Guardado, Hernandez' cousin. "We don't think the police are serving this community."

It was Guardado's first time at City Hall. She and other family members rallied around posters with grainy photos of Hernandez, showed him dead in the parking lot, with two officers standing on either side of his body.

A therapist and activist with the group MILPA (Motivating Individuals for Leadership in Public Advancement), Shi Cota, was making posters with Hernandez' relatives that said, "No more police brutality" in English and Spanish.

A woman protesting in front of Salinas City Hall on Tuesday evening holds a sign condemning recent police action.

She says she got involved when old clients started calling her up for counseling after witnessing the deadly encounter outside of Mi Tierra. "They saw something horrendous and horrible," Cota says.

Understanding that it's horrible for police officers involved as well, it's customary for officers to be placed on administrative leave pending investigations of officer-involved shootings. The three officers involved in the Hernandez shooting were cleared to return to duty on May 15.

City Councilman Jose Castañeda left the City Council meeting to address Juardado and other family members, urging them to call the Salvadoran Consulate in San Francisco to request an investigation. (Hernandez was Salvadoran.)

"The city likes to criminalize our community, criminalize our youth," says community activist Ana Barrera, a teacher at Everett Alvarez High School. "It's institutional racism."

Community activists were ready to talk about the afternoon's shooting, but city officials were not. As he left the City Council meeting, Police Chief Kelly McMillin said, "I'm not prepared to comment on anything that happened today. I understand there's a lot of emotion."

Residents peppered him with questions as he sipped a can of Diet Coke in the hallway outside the City Council meeting. As McMillin guided one woman across the lawn to the police station to file a citizen complaint on an unrelated case, the crowd began chanting, "Shame on you."

Community organizers are planning a May 25 march to emphasize their four-point request to City Council. They're calling for the creation of a civilian committee to respond to citizen complaints against the police; a federal investigation into Salinas PD, including officer-involved shootings over the past three years; a review of police training materials, open to the public; and that the officers involved in Tuesday's shooting remain on administrative leave until a federal investigation is complete.

The intersection where Tuesday's shooting occurred remained cordoned off six hours later, and several neighbors stood outside their homes watching the police officers behind the tape.

Minerea Jarquin, who lives just around the corner from the site of the shooting, was in her front yard when it occurred. "He used the gun five times," she says. "I'm so scared, I go inside my house and close all the doors and windows. I'm so very scared."

A resident just a few doors down from Jarquin was more angry than afraid: "It's a crime scene. Their crime."

Forget about the woman and the child for a second. Look at the big picture. The thin blue line that is here to "serve and protect" is a big blur in the city of Salinas. What crime is... This is an example of disgusting display of power. The shooters Randal Smith These guys are doing a tough job and it not like they get rich doing it. Why do we get to question them in these situations. We were not the ones put in charge of protecting the public. We are not the ones there that day. We did not get charged by an obviously deranged person who was coming at them with a weapon in this case some 12" garden clippers refusing to listen to their commands. Why do we get to second guess them.? If that guy had hurt someone and the police didn't respond fast enough would we be complaining about that too? I don't get it.

 Anna Salcido Yea they kinda do get rich and have real nice benefits too thats why alot of people join in the first place. You think if they didnt get good money and all these benefits so many people would be lineing up to join?

Like · 2 · May 29 at 2:46pm

Jose Vergara Anna not to mention these guys every year get double their salary in OT. I don't see how when they can't even solve a single case. If they were to hire double the cops we would have more patrols out there with same budget. All these people defending it's because they are either cops themselves or have fam members in there. Fact is they are eating up our tax dollars not doing their jobs and abusing their power .

Personally I do not think that they handled this one wrong. You can here them shoot the taser in the videos you can also hear the tell him to get on the ground but he continued and to make it worse he was heading towards the public.

Mary Jane Daniel I honestly don't see this as an issue. I don't believe it will stop a devoted police officer from doing his job any more than revealing the name of a convicted felon or other type of criminal from repeating his offense. If my life is threatened, you can bet your sorry @sses I'll be calling the police before calling anyone else! I don't fear the police because I know I am a law abiding citizen. I do, however fear the criminal who has absolutely no mercy for my life! People should really try keeping the peace instead of worrying about housing criminals in prison with their hard earned tax $ for the rest of their lives. Although it's true what they say, he didn't have to die. What people need to think about is the fact that the guy's mind was altered, impaired. You can't reason with someone in that state. They are more dangerous because they are not in control of themselves, which is why this guy didn't listen when police told him to drop the shears. Any person in their right mind, (I repeat, RIGHT MIND) would have obeyed the officers. No person in their right mind would be out, trying to break into someone's home, choking a dog, exposing themselves, let alone waving shears in front of officers. Yes, this could've been avoided, had that man been responsible & not made the decision to put himself under the influence. He brought this upon himself just like Salinas has brought this whole mess upon itself. When we, as a community don't come together to rid this city of any type of violence, it sets itself up for failure because it's as if we're accepting of it. Instead of targeting the SPD for doing their job, people need to take responsibility for their own actions. I'm a believer in that people need to go through the worst of the worst before we start to see the light at the end of the tunnel. For me, if you see and read any postings/comments on any of this coverage, you'll see the hate, disbelief, frustration, discrimination, anger, disappointment, and the divide amongst the community. There is no win here. There is no right here. No one wins. Everyone loses. I'm holding out for hope! For common sense to prevail! For people to come together & realize that as long as we live in this city, we need to do everything possible to make it safer. To make it peaceful. I still believe that this can happen, but only if we come together as a community.

Randal Smith I am going to go out on a limb here and say the thing that no matter how sad it is it is none the less true, which is that if that if it had been any civilian killing another civilian in the streets of Salinas which seems to happen at least once a week. Nobody would be protesting. So it's not the loss of life that bothers people. It is the fact that the police did it. When they did it in the line of duty trying to protect the public and themselves from someone who was caught peeping in someone's window messing with someone's dog and coming at the police with a weapon. Once again. I do not understand. Now the family is hiring a civil rights lawyer. Where was the family when this pour sick man was wandering the streets? I have a feeling that if the man who was shot was not a local they would not mind at all that he was shot after what he did. The whole thing reeks to me.

Sheila Bloomer Video of a man shot yesterday. You can hear them taze the man. The man continues to carry on. You hear them asking him to go down and he doesn't. He was shot and died. Some of the residents are upset saying it was out of line because he was shot four times but if you listen its clearly two guns at the same time. Both officers must have seen the same threat and fired at the same time. Not one person firing. And the fact that the man was tazed, refused to stop, and continued for a block before they fired....if it was me I would have stopped along time ago. I understand some are upset but to rage against the police is not the right thing to do.

Yesenia Garcia It's really sad to see how many people will protest against the cops. Yet they won't take the time to protest when a young child/adult gets murder in the streets of Salinas. Suddenly they have the guts to stand up to a officers but won't do it to a gangster. They'll harm an officer but not a gangster. Gangsters are the ones we should really be focusing on. People come out to be on camera to talk bad about a cop but won't come out to say they saw this person shoot this human being? Wtf are you serious!?

Don't condemn a whole group because of a few people. Police officers just like everyone else have families that worry about them. We're On the same boat just opposite sides. Is this OK with you??? Peaceful protests can be a great thing, but not the immature and violent behavior that's happening.... that doesn't solve anything, and they won't listen to people who are irrational. Sheila Bloomer Its the cycle our communities create. They hate the police, but when something happens they call crying. There was a shooting in daylight at a school over 50 whiteness, but no one saw anything. The community wants the violence to stop but they don't want to open there mouths. Instead they contribute. How many officers? And how many citizens? With out there help how can they solve anything? I know a few of the officers and I can just hope none of them were hurt. They go to work every day risking there lives. Some have children so everyday they kiss them good bye not knowing if they will see them again. But then there the bad people when they tazed first, the man didn't stop, verbally asked over and over several times prior to shooting. Reality is if you were being attacked and were in the same position you would have shot him to begin with. The police were patient in asking but didn't receive any cooperation.

Elizabeth Gonzalez If you look back at the video, one officer did use a tazer. I had to watch it 3 times to hear the sound. It obviously wasn't successful, just like before and as well in the Soledad case. Moral of the story is, if you are breaking the law AND you don't listen to the commands of the police you have the potential of being shot and possibly with lethal force. If you want to make sure you live then you better be a law abiding citizen and NOT threaten to kill anyone. The ones that "saw" what happened need to speak up, there are plenty of detectives wanting to hear you, just like when an innocent life is taken by a gang member, they want to hear you. Are there bad cops, yes and don't forget the "mexican" cop that in the early 2000's pistol whipped a man and the city of Salinas had to pay a hefty settlement, this shows that when the police are in fact in the wrong, there is a way to settle it but it shouldn't be with more violence. Besides the officer that got injured obviously wasn't one behind the gun, since they ARE on administrative leave like protocol states after an incident like this.

Cristina Ramos It's a little funny to me that people are protesting again our police department now that they have taken actions towards these past couple of incidents but when there's nothing being done your still bitching and moaning that they're not there to protect us. What if that lady wouldn't of called the cops or if she would haven taken longer to call!? Where would she be at now!? Anyone questioning that!!!!? Who would be rioting then!? Would anyone riot against the police for not arriving on time!? Or we would you all sit there and say nothing!? People need to stop and think of what else could have happened if they didn't do their job!?

Gabriela Lored It's very sad how ignorant people can be at times. You can be angry and disagree with the situation but there is no need to be violent. Isn't this how the whole situation happen ? People need to relax if the situation had been reversed and the guy had injured the police officer or a civilian people wouldn't have reacted the way they did. That story would of just been another news story soon forgotten. We shouldn't attack the brave officers who are out there on our street trying to keep them safe we should be praising them for having the courage to work the tough street of Salinas. Everytime there is a gang shooting in Salinas I hear the sirens of police cars not the protest of the people in salinas.

Brandi Casey Ok, one last time with the shoot him in the leg comments... do you have proper firearm training, do you know how to use one? Do you have any clue how difficult it is to aim for an arm or leg on a moving target? It's not so easy, and if they missed, the bullet will travel and hit an innocent bystander, meanwhile the criminal just got an extra few seconds to harm or kill the officers or bystanders..

Juan Rufino Blame the police! If the cop didn't do anything wrong do any of you think there would be this many people outraged? I bet if it was your family member you would be saying a lot different. Violence isn't gonna solve anything but if no one speaks up or does anything then this will keep happening. Everyone knows nothing is going to happen to the police officer that did this so Salinas be ready to see a lot of riots and protesting. If you see nothing wrong with the police murdering a man in cold blood then you are part of the problem. The man had gardening shears and these are two highly trained professionals? Are you kidding me? You're telling me they could not take him down any other way. Smh at the people taking the cops side.

The rule is if you're within 21 feet of me and you don't stop after a warning to stop and you have any type of a weapon in your hands and you're a threat then you have the right to shoot. Cops are supposed to be role models for our youth and lawbiding examples for every citizen. Its my opinion that all cops should be paid a minimum of 45k per year not exceeding 85k but when found guilty of breaking any laws they are sworn to enforce themselves should be given only the maximum sentence plus be made public that sentence was upheld and the public informed that no officer of the law is above the law just as it's citizens. And also when THE VERY RICH are found guilty they are not allowed to pay for their freedom but must also serve the actual time allotted by such offense described by the defining law. Period.....

Jennifer L. Martinez I say it's a sad situation all the way around becuz no one really nos both sides to the story. There could be a million reasons why the episode went down the way it did. There are always two sides to every story. Violence begets violence. So it's better to practice wat u preach! I'm born an raised in salinas an I'll tell u something I'm always hearing stories about the gangs an the violence! It's jus gotten worse with time an the officers are trying to always keep the homicides down, the violence but then there is the regular crime an then there is the gang crime so it's a lot for the task force to handle. Not saying they can't but wouldn't u or anyone get tired of all the violence happening? There comes a point in time when it jus has to stop! Riot against violence???? Lol not the police who actually u call when u need them!

Patte Laury And people can't understand why I don't live in the house we inherited in CA. It's in Salinas, that's why! -50 below Zero in winter here in the Northeast, is much preferable to the social climate there, thanks!

Don't you guys realize what a beautiful thing you've got going? Perfect weather, excellent location, nice people, beautiful architecture, historical significance... You guys are very fortunate! It's just this gang stuff. I get the fear factor. Gangs are scary. But ya can't go around living in fear, can ya? Bars on the doors and windows of homes, it's like the citizens are in jail instead of the criminals! Who runs this town anyway? Them? Or YOU?

It's not possible to fight Gangs on their own terms, but you can get your point across with your vote. Tell your elected officials you're tired of it, vote for funding, and get some sort of task force in there to make a point! Many other towns have done so successfully, but not until they've realized there is strength in numbers and votes count!

Good Luck. I wish you all the best. And maybe one day, I'll feel safe enough there to move back to the town my family hails from.

Like · Reply · 10 · May 15 at 3:19pm

Anna Salcido Because witness have nothing to gain out of this the police on the other hand have everything to loose. I agree with you on the gang related shootings but since most of those happen at night when most people are asleep or not outside thats why i think theres not many witness. And also the gang members are smart enough to know not to do a crime where there is cameras around.

 Victor Casanova I don't know sound to me like they don't care that they killed him. "Salinas police chief: Officers who killed lettuce fieldworker did nothing wrong" sounds to me like the officers didn't see someone that needed help.. But just a fieldworker. Cause two things could have happen in that bar brawl. One he started it or two he got jumped and chased them down. The officers should have tried to calm him down or just kept tasing him till the cuffs where on him.

YEAH THERE IS A REAL HURRY I GUESS ! The man is on the street and he is walking he might NEVER get tired and give up you have to kill him before he takes another step. My Dad was a Police Chief and when he had a problem he used time against people. He would wait them out as long as they did not threaten others. Many times he just told people "YOUR UNDER ARREST NOW GO DOWN TO THE POLICE DEPARTMENT AND TURN YOURSELF IN " and they would go down there.

It's simple "science" wether innocent or guilty if you are told to get down or surrender, just do it. If you are innocent, you will go free and keep going on with your life. If you resist, expect to be subdued by any means necessary. This man had threatened a woman and refused to surrender. Stop being anti-police and ignorant and thinking you are above the law and can do what you want. This man knew he could've done what he was told and refused. It's just that simple.

There used to be a time when deadly force was uncommon. A man with garden shears? Cops would of took him down in no time and dragged him away. Garden shears aren't dangerous, especially 2 against 1.

Those times are gone and I don't think they're ever coming back.

Read the back story as to why the cops were called, they tried more than long enough to bring him under control and it was his choice to lunge at them with a sharp object. I don't feel bad for him. It's something called personal responsibility and I can tell you that anyone actually in this chaotic situation would've done the same thing.

Used comun sence shoot on a leg , or shoot to the air,the guy looks drunk,he may surrender, it was really necessary to kill him?there is not diference on other video were a police officer kills a dog cause he feel his life trend.in this case there were two police officers with good training,i guess they make a wrong decision , two guys againts one come on, salinas is crazy salinas with so much crime,but police take lives of the most weak citizens that act stupid or maybe they are special ed , and real criminals are free and dont act stupid,hope the officer think about it and discharge his consience that he did right thing,on this case impunity will win no matter federal investigation take place.

My brother has flashbacks sometimes of when he used to fight for the drug cartels down South so I think he was having an episode and thought he had brought his invincibility shears instead, we have lost three other brothers in a similar way and enough is enough. Stand up with your shears in hand and fight and whatever you do don't listen to the commands the police give you because they will torture you and send you back to your home country for no reason. We will not stand for this injustice!

People should understand that every where on the world, police brutality is the same.they think because they wear a badge and a pistol they have the right to kill anyone they want to, its clearly seen that this guy was kill in a very unjustifiable way, the cop was to close to him to subdue him by shooting at his legs, and look how cowards they are that even with the guy already death on the floor, they are still scared of the guy.

A crazy drugged out perpetrator wielding a weapon burglarizes a home and exposes himself to the female homeowner. Cops called to the scene. They attempt to tase him. This is the way it is and we must like it since no one does anything. Do you think throwing a bottle is going to help. Yeah right. Look at this report. The media is part of the cops propaganda team of course.

+olddesertguy I disagree with you. Degree officers generally perform better than no degree officers and there are many reasons why officers with degrees perform better overall than officers without degrees. Primary among these is the influence on the individual's outlook and attitudes about different segments of society. Research

Is Salinas PD in competition with the Albuquerque PD? the cops have tazers, clubs, sprays and choose to use lethal force. 2 cops had those choices. Both of them have no problem backing away after they repeatedly shoot him. They had many options and they chose death. Will they be rewarded? And don't you dare protest or you may arrest you.

Yes, police brutality occurs more often than we would like but some officer involved shootings are warranted. Firstly, you do not know what occurred prior to the shooting. Secondly, the shooting victim was no angel - he broke into a woman's house and exposed himself, threatened her with large shears and tried to kill her
