As the U.S. and other NATO countries send more weapons to Ukraine in response to Russia's invasion, we could be facing the most dangerous situation since the Cuban missile crisis. The world seems to be breaking into two warring camps, one led by the United States and the other by Russia and China. Seemingly unreachable, the potential for nuclear attack and environmental destruction make peace necessary for everyone's survival.

Join our panelists to discuss the present situation and what it would take to create the peaceful world we need.

Anthony D'Agostino – Emeritus Professor of History, San Francisco State University, author of The Rise of Global Powers: International Politics in the Era of the World Wars

Richard Tan – Bay Area criminal and civil rights attorney and Marxist thinker and activist
